

Patrick Newell is a singer/actor, music director/conductor, and a Teacher of Singing in Classical and Belt/Musical Theatre/Pop styles. He is also the founder of the BFA in Musical Theatre at the University of Wyoming. He was awarded the University's Seibold Excellence in Teaching Research Award, which is allowing him to spend a year away from teaching while he writes a vocal pedagogy textbook about the singing style known as "Belting." Dr. Newell has served as Music Director for over 30 productions, including RENT with Theatre West, THE LAST FIVE YEARS with Snowy Range Summer Theatre, and BRIGADOON with Jekyll Island Musical Theatre Festival. He continues to perform, appearing last summer with Emerald City Opera in Steamboat, Colorado. He sends thanks and love to his wife and family for their support.
